

How often are data in our database updated?

We work hard to promptly capture the flow of new publications and products in our database

Updating our database is a big job and we do it monthly so you can stay up-to-date with the latest and greatest. Our partnerships with a range of vendors allow us to update our product catalogs nearly as often. If you find that a new product is missing or your favourite antibody has been discontinued, let us know and we'll make the change in one of our next updates.

We are also constantly tweaking, iterating, and improving the platform to best suit researchers' needs. We post about some of our biggest updates on our blog.
