

Do I have access to BenchSci?

Last Modified on 16/09/2021 10:42 am EDT

You can find out if your institution/organization has access to our technology by visiting our customers page. More information about eligibility for access can be found in our article on how to signup for an account.

Industry users

If you're able to sign up with your institutional email address, then your organization already has access! Otherwise, your company will need to pay for a license. Read more about industry access here.

Academic users

If you find your institution on the customers page, simply sign up using your institutional email address! We try to keep our database of academic institutional email domains updated, but we may miss one here and there. So if you are an active student/researcher and are unable to signup, please reach out to us at support@benchsci.com through
