

Can I search for multiple antibody targets? (aka batch searching)

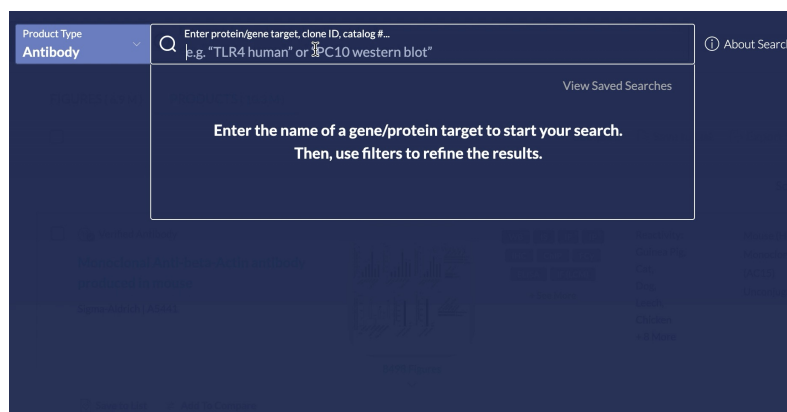

Last Modified on 03/02/2022 12:53 pm EST

If you're tasked with investigating multiple targets, our app is a great place to start

Currently, there isn't a way to batch search for more than one target at a time. If you were to enter multiple targets into the search bar, you would see results for antibodies that are specific for ALL of those targets (like a chimeric protein target).

However, you can use the search bar to quickly preview available data for your protein target before applying that target in your search.

Beside each search suggestion, you can preview the amount of literature data and products available. If you are in the Figures results tab, you'll see the number of figures available. In the Products results tab, the number of matching targets will be shown.
